“ To my good friend Francis, I will miss you a lot. You always had my back and I always had yours. We had ups and a lot of downs. But in the end we had each other's back. I love you and I'll miss you. To miss Kay and family and friends, I'm so very sorry for your loss. But to ease our minds he's not suffering anymore and is with Chad laughing and playing and four wheeling. With lots of LOVE

“ I am so sorry to here of Francis's passing. I meet Francis a few years ago when he was looking to have someone outside to help him. I introduced myself as the owner a Hydraulic Shop looking for work. Francis wasn't to long on words of you knew him. He grunted at me for chewing gum in his presence. Then he said that he had been looking for a guy or someone to help him fix a hyd. part or make one. He found the part over in the corner and tossed it to me and said see what you can do with this because he had been looking for over a year to try and come up with something. Didn't want to hear from me unless I could do anything. Now after Francis had gave me a final lecture about my gum of course in a softer voice. Letting me know he didn't care for anyone trying to talk to him with something in my mouth. As I left I said that I was one person that was going to remember his order about gum! This was one of the many ways he was to let you know how he felt and another day of his teachings. I left and went back to my shop and called Francis the next morning to give him an option of fixing the part or making a new one. He said that he was amazed that I could do anything for him. Well from that time on I had a friend because he knew that I would help him in anyway I could. That's the way it was between us! I have since given up my business because of a accident that my wife and I had. This July it will be 2 years that we had our accident. I tried to let Francis know about my company with messages. I know that I had a true friend in Francis and really wished I could have said good bye to him. Francis Rest In Peace My Friend! Maybe some day I'll let him know how I tried to say goodbye!

“ Words simply can not begin to express our heartfelt sympathy. We are truly fortunate to have had such a great friend for so many years. Our lives will never be the same without Francis. His friendship and kindness, his great sense of humor, his colorful choice of words and creative word imaging - never wondering what he was really thinking and that contagious laugh will be greatly missed. Love, hugs and prayers.
