“ What can I say about my Aunt Jean that no one else has said?! I remember as a kid going to Philly every summer and seeing my "meanie Aunt Jeanie". Then as I got older the joys of going to visit my Aunt came far a few between. She was always welcoming and acted like it hadn't been years since we've seen each. I remember Many yrs ago going to visit and she was wearing some stylish rhinestone jeans and she looked so cute. She was a young soul at heart and always found the joys in life. I talked to her in the beginning of this year and even though she was in pain she sounded in good spirits and made sure I knew she loved me and cared what was going on in my life. I know your in good hands and that your no longer in pain but I just wish it wasn't your time to go and I could have the chance to see you one last time! You are and will be missed deeply! I love you Aunt Jean!

“ I sit here thinking of what to write about my Aunt Jean. So many memories of when I was a kid goes through my head. Every summer we would go up to Philly and visit family. She would tell our parents that our car and the kids would be safe because she put the word out on the street that we were there and no one were to mess with us. I really loved seeing my Aunt Jean. She was tough. We gave her the nickname Meanie Jeanie. Always telling you like it is, weather you liked it or not. It didn't matter who you were. One summer we were playing in sprinkler attached to the fire hydrant. And this police cruiser came out of nowhere and almost hit me. My Aunt Jean came running into the street yelling and pointing at the officer. The officer was trying to tell her that the hydrant should not be on because of a drought. After an exchange of words the officer got back into his cruiser a left and the hydrant was still running. It's memories like that that bring a tear to my eye and a smile to my face. Even though it's been a few years that I've seen her, she will be extremely missed. I LOVE YOU!! Heaven has gotten one tough angel.

“ As a kid I always thought of my aunt Jean as meanie aunt Jeanie. The funny thing is, I think she gave herself that name. She would say, "I'm mean...aint I? It's ok, you can call me meanie auntie Jeanie." As an adult I realize that she really wasn't mean at all. She was one of the most loving, warm hearted and caring person I have ever met. She would give you the shirt off her back if it made you happy. Several years back I went to visit my aunt Jean and at the time I was going through a rough patch in my life. She told me how much she loved me, gave me a hug and told me how proud she was of me for doing what was right in my heart and that I had her love and support. I will never forget that moment. I never really thought the day would come when I would have to say good bye. I always thought my meanie aunt Jeanie would live forever. However, God had other plans for her. I truly believe that she is in a better place, no longer in pain. Aunt Jean, you will forever be in my heart!!! Love, Jennifer...your favorite niece. Lol

“ There are no words to describe the love and affection I have for my Aunt Jean! She was a huge support for me in times of trouble and a rally of support in times of celebration. Her door was always opened whether you wanted to have a quick pop in visit or a week long visit, she enjoyed everyone's presence. As a child, I would love to watch her yell rant and rave at the children, usually John or Carol-HA! I never understood why they did half the things they did knowing it would get them into trouble, but Aunt Jean always corrected you with love...maybe that's the why...My favorite part of my visits is sitting on the stoop watching all the nightly activities- She loved her Dunkin Donuts coffee, she would send us late in the evening to grab a round for everyone, we would stay up to at least 3am just talking about family and friends and memories of those who left us. Aside from my mom, aunt Jean and my Aunt Midge were the closest to my grandmother I could possibly get. My visits will not be the same without her there to love on...I will dearly miss my Aunt Jean...Love you Aunt Jean today tomorrow forever!

“ Jean was a great person to know and be a friend to. Many times we sat on her steps to chat about anything. We also walked the neighborhood at night to check how things were. Time spent with Jean was enjoyable and sometimes funny.. Her favorite expression was Ill bet you a dollar to a donut. She had a heart of gold and helped people when she could. Rest well Jean. Walk with God. Your friend Ida.
