“ Anyone who knew Jeff will tell you he never slowed down for anything and nothing could keep him down. Quintessential example - One hunting season in the middle of all of his health issues, he lamented to me that he was not going to be able to hunt that year. He was a little down about it. A couple of days later we were chatting and he mentions a shot a doe. I was confused because Jeff was not really able to "go hunting", but then he proceeds to tell me he had begun to sit on his porch with a rifle "just in case". Sure enough a doe wandered through their property and Jeff was able to pick up the rifle and tag the doe. Here is the thing though - Jeff was in a wheelchair at the time due to all of the various therapies he was undergoing and he forgot to lock the wheels before he fired. The recoil of the rifle sent him head over heels then sprawled out onto his porch. Didn't even see if he got the doe. Lisa had to confirm it and field dress the doe as Jeff was not able. He even got so bruised up that he skipped a couple of doctor's appointments so they would not find out he got them nor HOW he got them. Lol - Jeff always pushed through if he really wanted to do something. Sometimes drove me crazy, but man do I already miss him.
