“ Pictured, please find two items that reveal the structure of my mother's character. One is taken from behind my mother and son as they watch ducks on the Quittie west of Lebanon.

The other is a quotation from Gen. Peter Pace USMC, former Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff who started his career in Vietnam. He would know something about his topic, as would my mother. In the budding flower of her youth she waited as her father did not return from WWII. The timing and location suggest the Battle of the Bulge. The DOD has not been particularly forthcoming. He gave his life, she gave her father. That's the sort of thing that informs a life.

“ Mom, you are like a little pebble cast into the pond. I am one of your ripples circling round. I feel both your whimsical spirit and your contentment in God's good earth. Thank you for passing those on to me. Tom
