“ Hi, Grandma. I miss you. I'm kind of glad I didn't see you those last years, though I did plan to visit. I called the home but by the time preparations were made, you had already gone. But I don't believe you would have known me and that, coupled with not having seen you for so long (and the emotions I felt from that alone), would have killed me inside.

Nothing I can say can make up for not having been there. But I think we all weren't there for each other, sometimes, Grandma. Matthew 18:22 teaches forgiveness. I forgive everyone their wrongs and I hope you can forgive mine! I have always loved you. You're my Grandma, my blood! I will always love you.

I know you're with God now - where there are no tears, all encompassing love, and eternal comfort! I'll see you there when my time comes. Enjoy your true home, Grandma!
